Fulermoney Plus Issue 130 07 November 2000

Global Strategy and Investment Trends by David Fuller

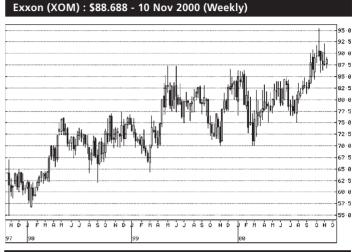

http://www.fullermarkets.com

Wall Street has discounted a Bush victory in today's election. If Gore wins some key stocks may be hit.

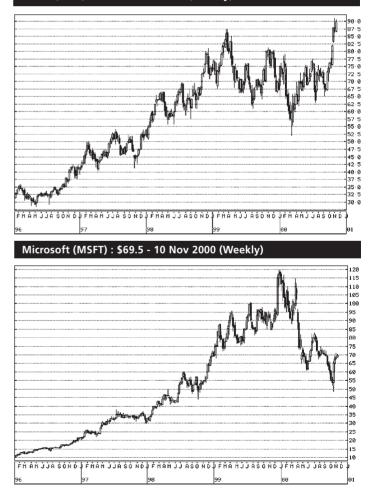

"Big oil", pharmaceuticals and Microsoft are Gore targets if the campaign rhetoric is to be believed -Exxon, Merck and Microsoft are sector leaders. The first two remain in long-term uptrends and reached new all-time highs last month. Microsoft has rebounded strongly from its October low. The recent rallies have coincided with Bush's narrow but persistent lead over the last few weeks. However if the latest polls are accurate this will be the closest US presidential election in 40 years. Wall Street would be 'surprised' by a Gore victory and the initial response could be negative, particularly for leading stocks in sectors targeted by the Vice President's populist campaign. On a longer-term view, I like Exxon, Merck and Microsoft. However in this choppy market environment I maintain that it is risky to buy any stock after a good rally.

US dollar correction - amateurs in charge at the ECB - FM197 concluded that the US dollar's advance against the euro and other weak currencies was temporarily overextended on the charts but that it would experience no more than a medium-term reaction within a primary, multiyear bull market. This technical correction is underway and the dollar has also backed away from lateral resistance against the yen, to extend its base for a while longer. The flipside of the dollar's pullback is a technical rally for the euro, helped by the prospect of further multilateral intervention as the single currency tested its medium-term lows, which I have long maintained would be in the 83¢ to 79¢ range. I would not be surprised to see this level retested because talk of the US economy slowing while Europe chugs along is unrealistic. The US's third-quarter GDP figure of 2.7% was slower than most economists forecast and it certainly has bearish implications for Europe's growth, evidenced by today's Industrial Production figures for Germany, -1.6% for September (MoM) and only +4.5% (YoY), against the consensus forecast of +5.9. Also, the ECB's tactics remain inept - publicly trying to persuade the US to abandon a strong dollar policy (no chance) and by intervening unilaterally after the euro has rallied, rather than buying near the lows where they can squeeze short positions.

Best regards - David Fuller

FullerMarkets a division of Stockcube Research Limited Suite 1.21 Plaza 535 Kings Road London SW10 0SZ UK Website: www.fullermarkets.com Email: research@fullermarkets.com Tel: +44 (0) 20 7351 5751 Fax: +44 (0) 20 7352 3185

You are strongly advised to read the following: This report has been produced and compiled by FullerMarkets, a division of Stockcube Research Limited (Stockcube) which is regulated by the Securities and Futures Authority Ltd, according to the requirements of the Financial Services Act 1986. It is distributed by Stockcube and is provided for information purposes only. Under no circumstances is it to be used or considered as an offer to sell, or a solicitation of any offer to buy. While all reasonable care has been taken to ensure that the information contained herein is not untrue or misleading at the time of publication, we make no representation as to its accuracy or completeness and it should not be relied upon as such. From time to time Stockcube and any of its officers or employees may, to the extent permitted by law, have a position or otherwise be interested in any transactions, in any investments (including derivatives) directly or indirectly the subject of this report. Also Stockcube may from time to time perform other services (including acting as adviser or manager) for any company mentioned in this report. The value of securities can go down as well as up, and you may not get back the full amount you originally invested. Derivatives in particular are high risk, high reward investment instruments and an investor may lose some or all of his/her original investment. If you make an investment in securities that are denominated in a currency other than that of GB Pounds you are wared that changes in rates of foreign exchange may have an adveser effect on the value, price or increasent for more of the investment. The investment The investment for all persons accessing these pages. You should carefully consider whether all or any of these are suitable investments for you and if in any doubt consult an independent adviser. This report is prepared solely for the information of clients of Stockcube excepts any liability whatsoever for any uprocesent of Stockcube accepts any liability whatsoever for any uprices